Class Song

What has been done is done.
Everything is now left to you, the lucky ones.
In closing we would like to say
God bless you and keep you safe every day.

Class Officers

History

Through the years drift the bits and pieces of the many moments we've shared, all carefully woven together by friendship to create a warm memory and the class of 1974!

1962 Mrs. Byrd, Mrs. Carnes, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Walker

Since our class was the largest enrolling first grade in the history of the school system and contained three sets of twins, our teachers were almost as confused as we were! While exploring the wonders of his new desk, Ken Fox became so involved that his head got caught between the chair rungs. Besides the usual lessons in reading, writing, and arithmetic, Jeff Whittaker had to have one more—a shoestrapping lesson. Cheryl Zeigler put on her raincoat and boots and took her lunch and books—just to make a trip to the restroom. Mrs. Mackey spent all morning one day, explaining to the Sauricki twins that their names were not “Joan Bone” and “June Bug”.

1963 Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Miller, Miss Reed

In second grade the teachers awarded gold stars to the well-behaved students, but few of us received any! Randy Parish snipped a lock of Darlene Drotar's hair, but quickly amended his wrong by gluing it back on her head when he was threatened by her fist. Cathie Mason's singing talents weren't recognized during our spring music concert, but she sure caught the audience's attention when her shoe flew off her foot during our “Hi-Ho” performance. For being spelling champ, Darlene Carnes received a candy bar and probably the only gold star given out that year.

1964 Mrs. Tonti, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Valochin

Third grade was our year for being nature minded. Don Clark carried his lunch in an “Old MacDonald's Farm” lunch bucket covered with horsies, cows, and piggies. Everyone suffered through phonic lessons with “Toby Turtle.” Mrs. Valochin's class observed the metamorphosis of a butterfly. Two guinea pigs escaped from their boxes and made Mrs. Williamson's class frantic when they hid under the register for two whole days.

1965 Mrs. Britt, Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Ray

By the time we reached fourth grade, we began to suffer growing pains. There was a tearful separation from Joan Sauricki and Terri Lawyer when a reading test resulted in room rearranging or “musical teachers.” If we felt bad about earning an “F”, Mrs. Ray made sure we felt even worse by smacking our hand with a ruler! Jeff Sedlock's and Rick Wheatcroft's rocket (a baby aspirin bottle propelled by vinegar and soda) “blasted off” and flew several feet until the ceiling stopped it. Unfortunately their blooming careers as scientists were nipped in the bud, when Mrs. Britt exploded because the rocket left a dripping residue on the ceiling.

1966 Mrs. Cassidy, Mrs. Lepore, Miss Ulam

Our class was beginning to act like mature, young people, but some of us fifth graders were a little reluctant to give up old ways. In a cloakroom brawl, Chuck Hudzik threw a punch at June Sauricki; unfortunately for both of them June ducked but poor Mrs. Cassidy didn't! Cathy Clower and Cathie Mason had their singing debut performing “The Beverly Hillbillies” in a talent show. Our best dancer, Mike Popp, started a new fad when he did the latest step, the twist, to “I'm a Believer.”

1967 Mr. Dunn, Mrs. Sanders, Mr. Sullivan

As sixth graders we were “bit shots” at Seaborn Elementary, or so we thought. During the Arbor Day Program conducted exclusively by us “bit shots”, Mike Stevens fainted because of the heat. Mr. Dunn's index cards of bad conduct appeared with every report card. Because she was trying to impress everyone, Cindy Drake spent most of her time in the restroom reversing her wrap-around skirts. Patty Urmson earned the nickname “Pierre” because she was constantly styling Dianne Strohmeier's long brown hair.

1968 Mr. Behner, Mr. Montiforte, Mrs. Swinehart

When we became seventh graders we had to adjust to many new situations, such as ducking low heating pipes, changing classes, and doing weekly spelling preparations. In order to keep from receiving a hair pulling from Mr. Behner, Rick Wheatcroft, greased his hair while Kendra Cross played it safe—by not talking. John Cheeks used his size to become a basketball sensation by jumping under opposing players. Mr. Montiforte was forever yelling at the “filmstrippers” to get down from the stage and give somebody else a chance.

1969 Mr. Miller, Mr. Montiforte, Mrs. Murray

Entering eighth grade promoted us to “jot stuff” once again. Our previous experience as “bit shots” didn't teach us much. Mr. Penick didn't appreciate Mark Mahorick's artistic attempts of desk doodling so he knocked over the desk, with Mark still in it! The boy's favorite class was art—all they did was talk about football with Mr. Abraham and compare the girls' figures with famous players. We got “canned” by Mr. Penick when it became a fad to “accidentally” fall into the library trash can after mounting the steps. One of our main goals at lunch time was to see who could eat the most prunes and shoot peas into the basketball hoop above the lunch table. The underclassmen put us in our places when we had two classes at the high school, by giving us directions to the restroom instead of study hall.

1970 Mrs. Blaney, Mrs. Eckert, Mr. Platt

As freshmen we added some excitement to the high school. During one of our basketball games, Dave Pugh scored a basket for the other team and Ray Buckner's pants split. Cheryl Zeigler had lucky froggies on her desk to aid her in Algebra class. Diane Strohmeier's Spanish book had mysterious ways of falling out of homeroom windows when Mike Stevnes' hands were near it. Our class amazed the school when Dave Pugh saw varsity football action and Cathie Mason played the lead role in the musical, “The Boyfriend”. We even were responsive when our cheerleaders, Sue Burk, Terry Burns, Kim Hofius, Joan Sauricki, and Cathie Mason lead us in pep rally cheers.

1971 Mrs. Gerke, Mrs. Nardo, Mrs. Schisler

Somehow we survived all the tribulations and managed to contain our swelling egos due to our sophomore triumphs. Mr. Nace, Mr. Leskovak and student drivers completed drivers training without any accidents—even though one of us insisted on traveling up the same side of the road as a semi truck. We contributed our physical skills to help make the first gym show a success and to clinch the girls' ICL Track Title. Kim Wilson suffered a “football knee” when she fell down the hill at band practice.

1972 Mrs. Eckert, Mr. Platt, Mr. Whittaker

In a whirlwind of activity we spent the year fulfilling the traditional role of juniors and having fun. The first official act: to elect class officers: Dave Pugh, president; Patty Urmson, vice president; Ginger Adair, treasurer; and Michelle Sabino, secretary. Mr. Miller's history class made a cowboy movie “Custard's Last Stand” with a cast of Debbie Irwin, Dianne Bickerstaff, Laura Krizen, Mike Meszaros, and Don Clark. Chemistry classes had several hair-raising adventures: John Szuch singed his hair and eyebrows when the flame was too high on Sherry Rummell's and Dianne Strohmeier's Bunsen burner. Barb Harker and Kim Hofius had a first hand experience with spontaneous combustion when their oxygen experiment caught fire.

Mr. Price, our class sponsor, supervised the money making project of selling Christmas cards and candles. Mrs. Harris directed the successful class play, “Who Says We Can't?” Starring our imaginary dog Butch with Dave Pugh hanging on to a rope with “Butch on one end and a determined June on the other.” During the spring months our creative energies were employed painting murals—and the cafeteria floor, for our prom, Sites from Shanghai. Our class president, Cave, bid a fond and somewhat anxious farewell to the seniors of '73, and proudly raised our flag of maroon and pink, designed by Cindy Drake, to mark the succession of the Seniors of '74.

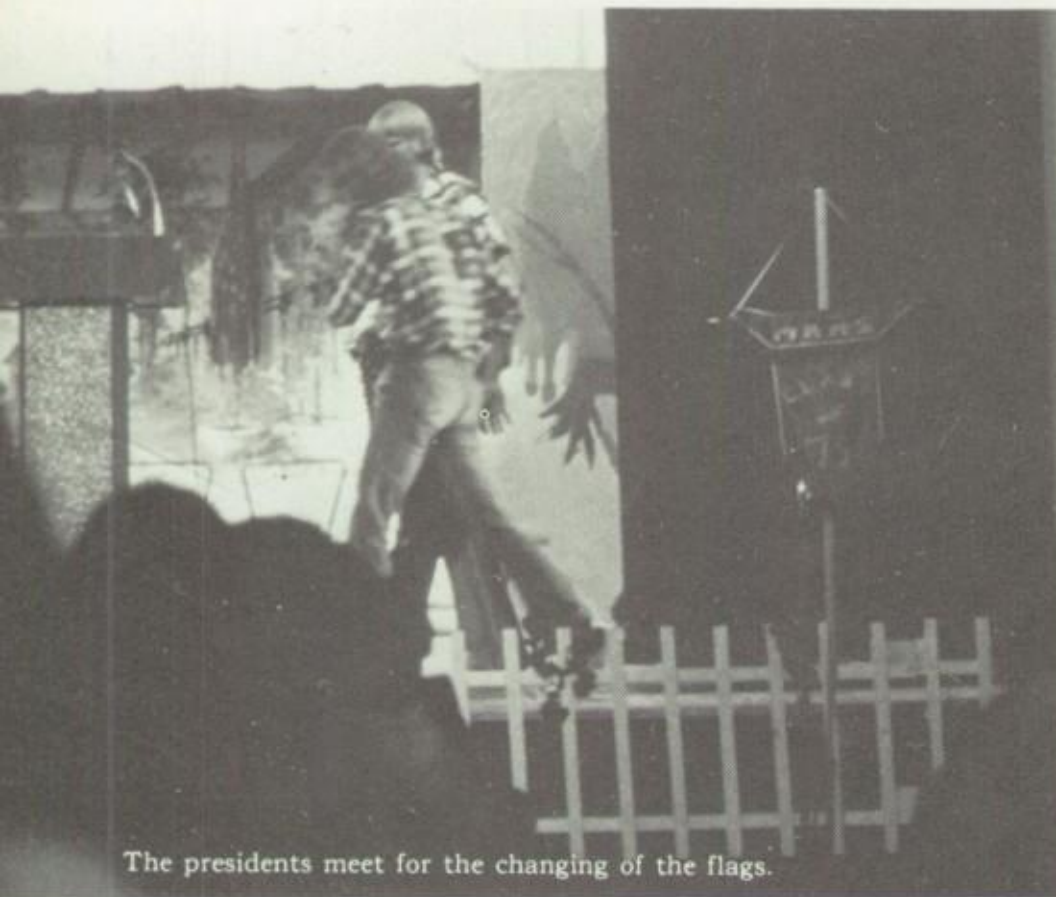

1974 Mrs. Harris, Mr. Price, Mr. Ross

The year we never thought would come, had come at last. We chose Rick Petrosky our class president, Michelle Sabino, vice president, Kim Hofius, treasurer, and Kim Wilson, secretary. On Oct. 5, 1973 Kim Hofius was crowning a regal Homecoming Queen at the Western Reserve game and her court Sherry Rummell, Terry Burns, Gloria Bednarik, and Joan Sauricki were escorted across the field for the ceremonies. Mr. Whittaker was the new football coach. Mike Meszaros happily saw action in the final game after a determined effort. We presented our class play, “Tammy Tell me True” starring Cathie Mason as Tammy. Three new extra-curricular activities were added to the schedule: rifle club, cross-country team, and a girls' gymnastic team. Our delicate ladies trounced the junior girls in the powder-puff football game sponsored by Student Council. Cathie Mason and Don Clark as the “Music Man” gave stellar performances in the annual musical. In order to finance our yearbook we sold Gorant candy with Patty Howard Corbin as high salesman. Junior-Senior Prom was a romantic experience with the theme “Moonlight and Roses” Sherry Rummell and Kevin Rouan were chosen by the Juniors and Seniors as Prom royalty. The drama department and art department combined efforts under Mrs. Madsz and Mrs. Sarkany to produce a traveling company of players to present “Snow White”. Outstanding were the dwarf heads and unique use of the overhead project for scenic effects.

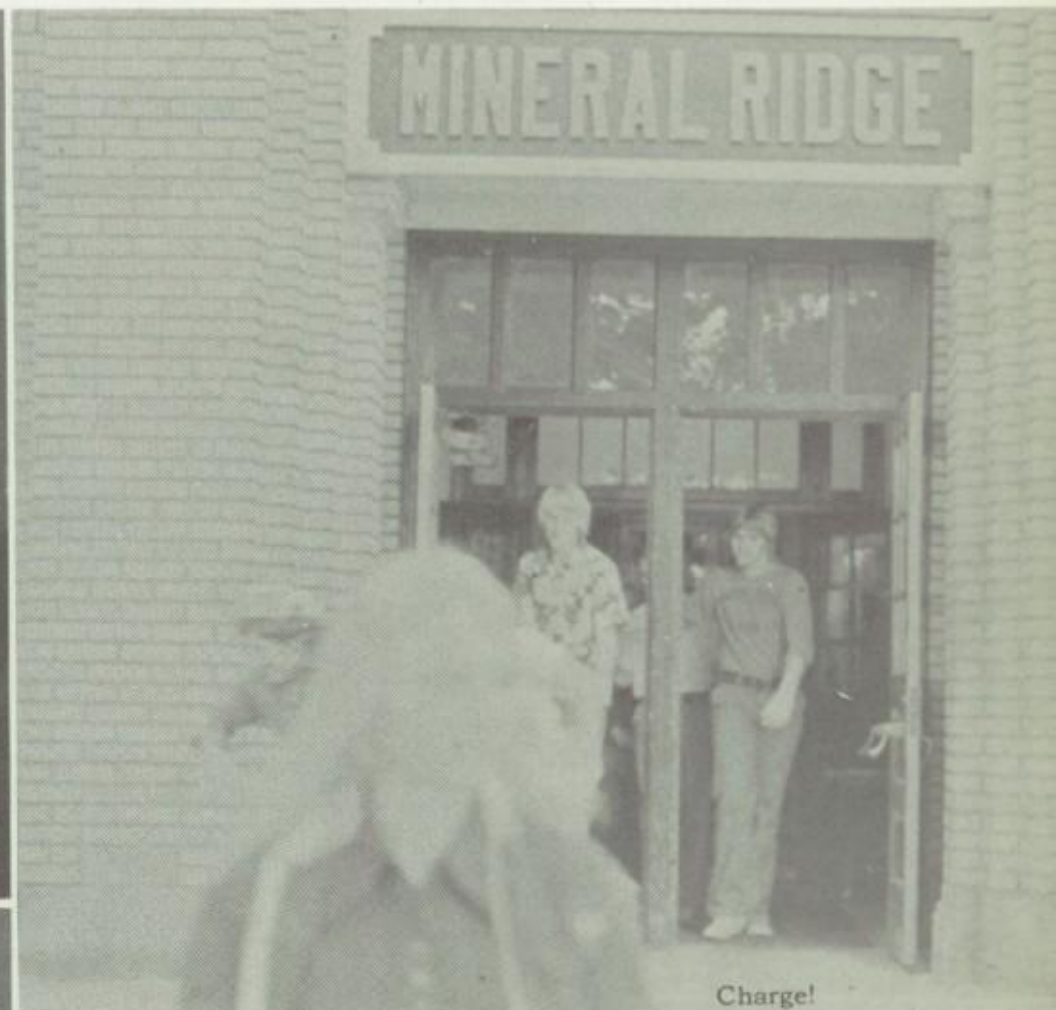

Our class motto “Learn as if you were to live forever, live as if you were to die tomorrow” held an important place in our class day scene as painted by Cheryl Ziegler. The girls in white gowns, the boys in maroon, marched in the traditional procession to the stadium to head addresses by Valedictorian Gloria Bednarik and Salutatorian June Saurick. Open house displayed the many trophies won at sports and those coveted Senior Poll awards presented on May 24th our special class day.

In a reception line we received congratulations and fond wishes for a bright future. When the Commencement ceremonies closed the Class of 1974 was no more a part of Mineral Ridge High School, only a memory shared by all of us.

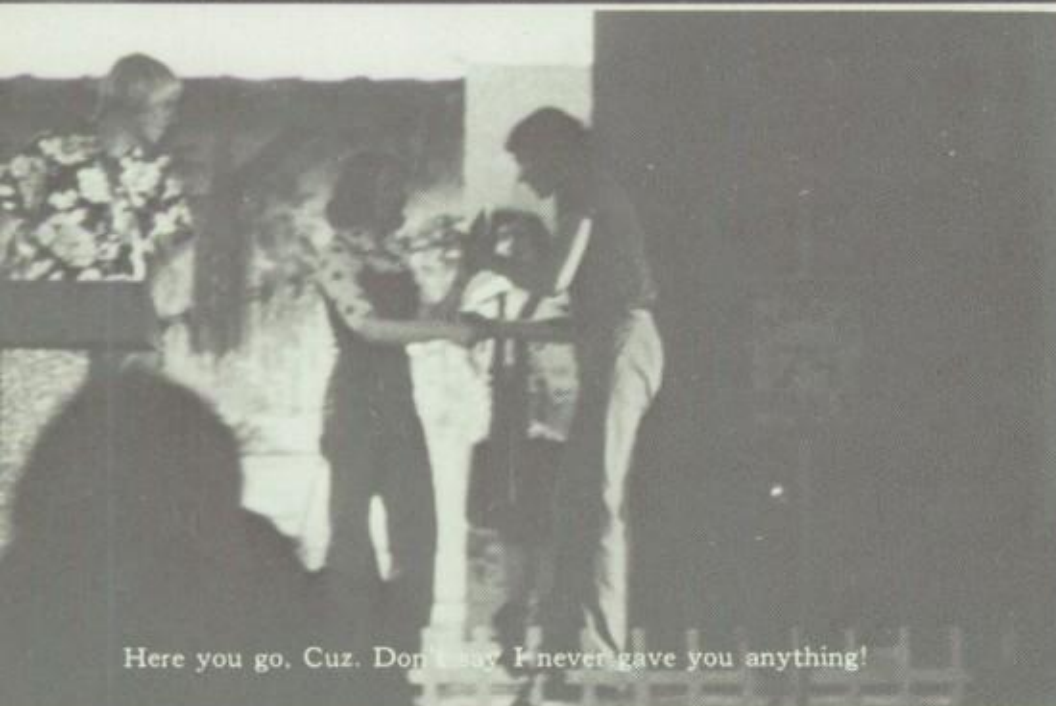

Class Day May 24, 1974

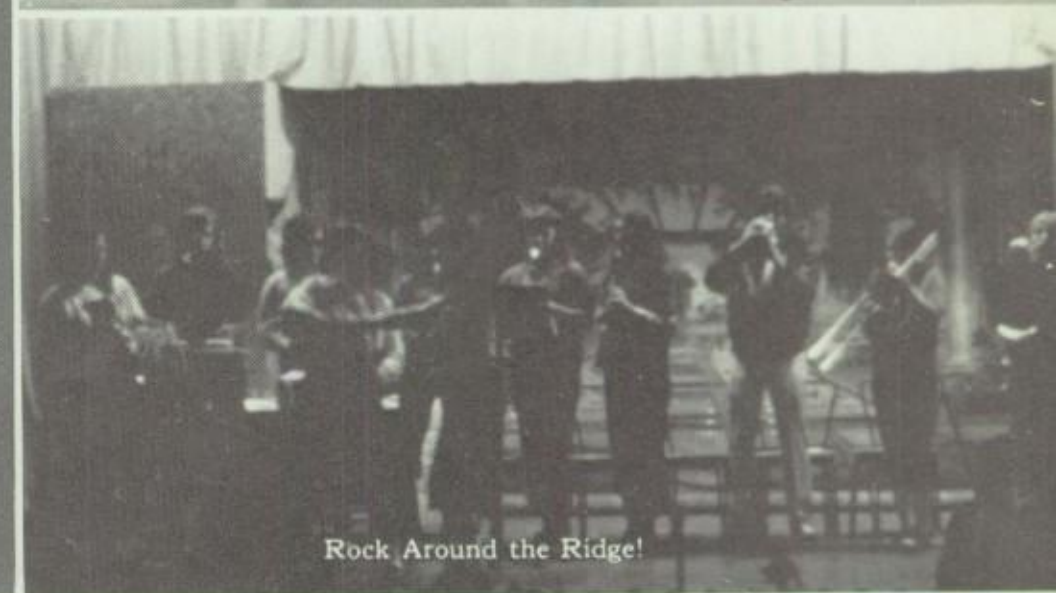

The presidents meet for the changing of the flags.

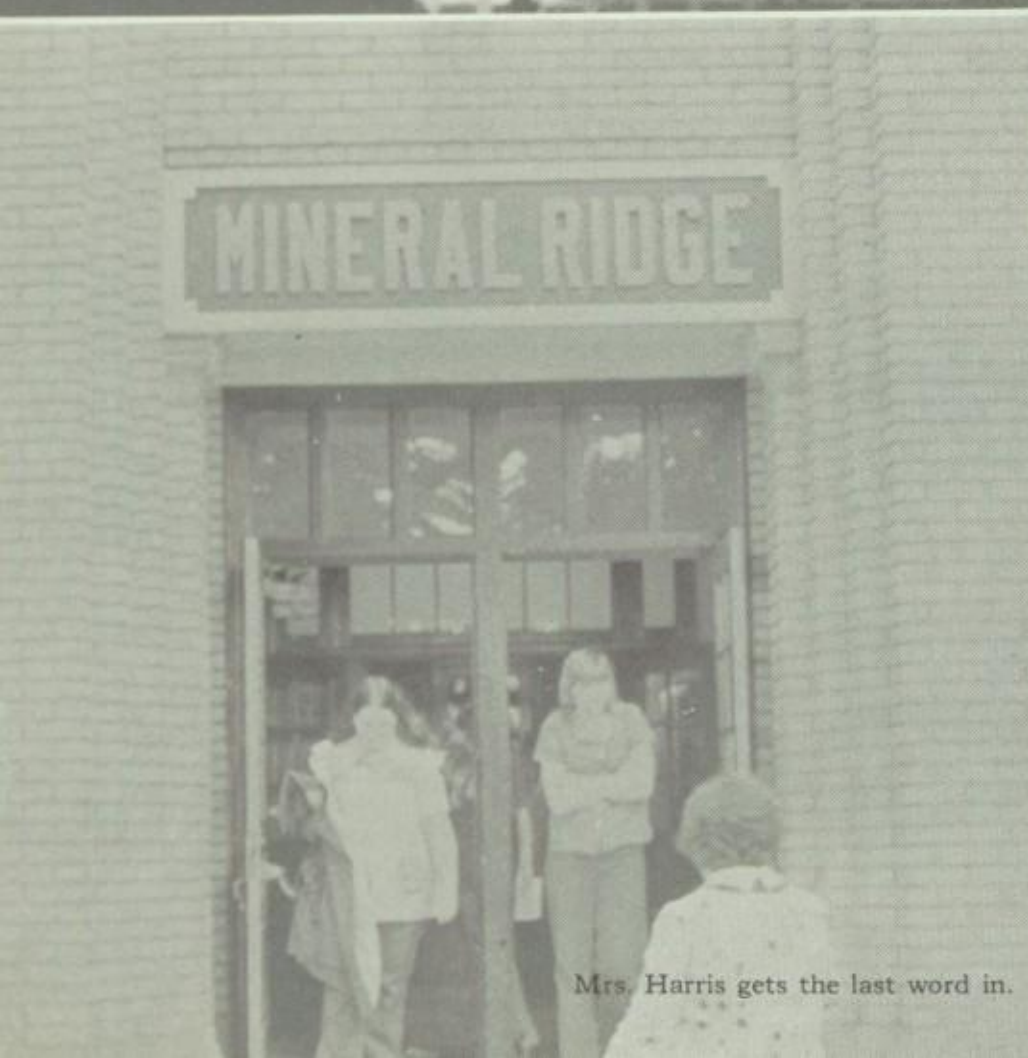

Charge!

Here you go, Cuz. Don't say I never gave you anything!

Rock Around the Ridge!

Mrs. Harris gets the last word in.

More awards for Cathy.

Homecoming October 5, 1973

On the crisp fall night of October 5, 1973 an excited stadium of football fans looked on as Margie Thomas relinquished her crown to our new Homecoming Queen, Kim Hofius, during the half-time ceremonies of the Western Reserve game. Following the game, Queen Kim and her court reigned over the annual Homecoming dance held in the all-purpose room.

Homecoming court included: Queen Kim Hofius, and her escort Jeff Whittaker; Gloria Bednarik and her escort Rick Petrosky; Terry Burns and her escort John Cheeks; Sherry Rummell and her escort Kevin Rouan; and Joan Sauricki and her escort Randy Parish.

Prophecy

We have reached the year of 1994 when the city of Mineral Ridge was converted into a space orbiting colony of MR II.

Mayor of MR II, Don Clark, Jr., cites that the colony is functional and self-sufficient. This fact was demonstrated when Mayor Clark's chief cabinet member, June Sauricki, contracted the engineering company, Spaced Out, owned by Rick Petrosky and Randy Parish to repair the damage which occurred yesterday during a meteor shower. Within microseconds the supervisor, Mike Popp and his crew John McKinney and Mike Sublett had completed the repair.

Within the doomed city are numerous businesses and services necessary to support the colony.

Leading scientist, Mike Meşzaros invented the artificial solar globe that simulates daylight and moonlight. Operating the delicate computer inside the globe to give the colony weather variations are Chuck Hüdzik, Terri Lawyer, and Cheryl Zeigler.

MR II is well prepared to handle any medical emergency with its Aurora Medic Center. Doctors, Ginger Adair and Gloria Bednarik, supervise the medical staff of nurses: Donna Bickerstaff, Kim Hofius, Sherry Rummell, and Barb Strah. Kendra Cross and Diane Bickerstaff specialize in treating victims of jetpack collisions. We even have Cathy Glower and Joan Sauricki to aid colonists in psychological adjustments to astro-living. Clinic appointments can be arranged by contracting the secretaries, Debbie Ladd, Kim Jeffries, and Terry Burps.

Residents maintain many luxuries of Earth life, including Moonlight Mall. Patty Miller and Debbie Ben the owners of the Heavenly Body Salon have created the new Venus hairstyle much to the delights of their customers. Colonists can purchase the Star Style Fashions designed by Darlene Carnes, Cindy Drake, and Karen Lonce. Ken Fox, an independent record dealer, has in stock all the latest cuts of electronic music from Saturn. Proprietors of the Neon Nova, Brenda and Duane Moore, contribute their thriving business to two factors. Neon Nova's vegetables and fruits are colony grown by space agriculturalists, Dave Pugh and Kirk Egry, then instantaneously teleported when ripe to the store by the produce dealer, Kevin Rouan. Also the Neon Nova receives much business due to its catchy commercial jingle written by Mark Mahorick and Sandy Riley. "There's MOORE in store, when you walk in Neon Nova's door."

Although orbital living has many advantages, MR II inhabitants still must contend with the demands of everyday living. Children attend a stellar school. Patty Urmson, the guidance counselor, helps children choose a profession. The school offers: calculus and space geometry taught by Sue Watkins; Kim Wilson supervises communication; ancient Earth culture taught by Ruth Shiley; Jeff Whittaker and Sue Nagy teach physical fitness; and Jim Nadaud instructs meditation classes. Colonists handle their finances at the Comet Commerce operated by Michelle Sabino and Marilyn Campbell. The bank tellers, Barb Harker, Debbie Johnson, and Npteen Davies give friendly service. All the news across the universe is published daily by the MR II Crier under the guidance of editor, Dianne Strohmeier and her reporters Dorothy Gadd, Linda Loudon, and Lynn Picken.

Father Don Wolford leads the colonists in the quest for spiritual happiness, as the Cosmic Chapel.

For recreation, the inhabitants can go unicorn riding at Darlene Drotar's and Laura Woofert's Uranus Unicorn Stable.

If anyone wishes to travel to our delightful colony, contact Inter Galaxy Agency headed by Laura Krizen and her associates, John Cheeks and Sue Burk. You can board the star ship, "Enterprise" piloted by Ray Buckner, Dan Minor, and Dave Miller. Space hostess, Linda Parker will cater to the weary travelers' needs. One can rest at ease knowing the vehicle was designed for safety by James Harmon and Rick Wheatcroft and is kept in repair by a crew of mechanic specialists, Ron Minick, Randy Minick, and John Szuch.

Upon arrival you will be guided by Patty Corbin to Module Motel owned by Deb Irwin. It features the Ultraviolet restaurant run by Jeff Sedlock and Mike Stevens, and there is nightly entertainment by the universally renowned singer, Cathie Mason.

If you happen to get earthsick, don't fret. Through Mercury Communications operated by Bill Shonk, Pam Rathburn, and Betty Daum you can get in touch with earth on a wave light phone.

Come visit the former class of 1974 on MR II where space living is a dream come true.

Senior Play "Tammy, Tell Me True" Nov. 17, 1973.

Joey tries out his new fishing rod.

Miss Jenks' office.

A call for the verdict.

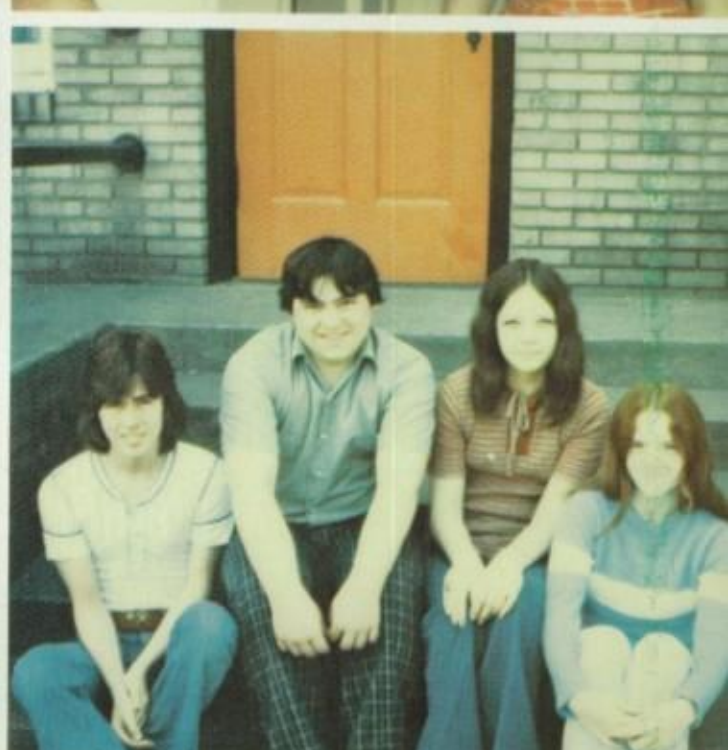

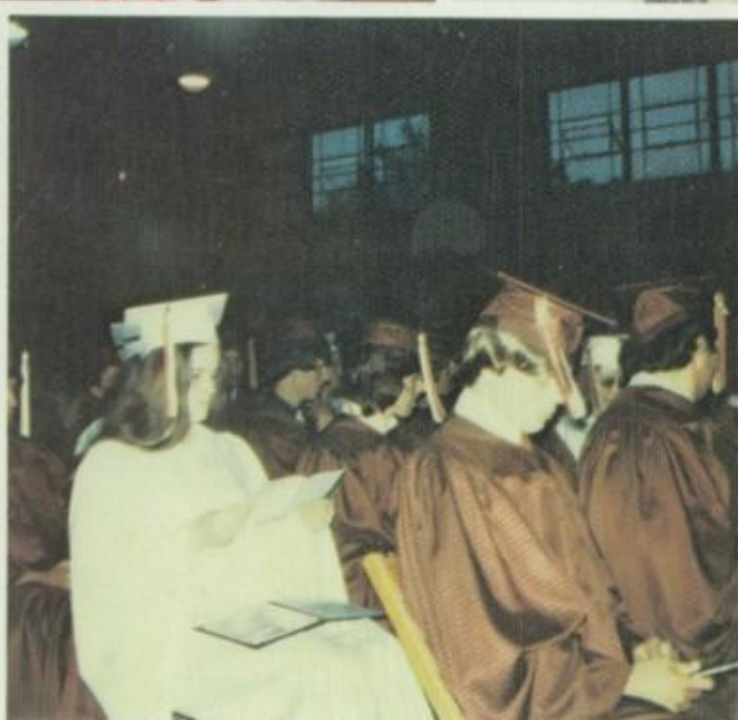

They're coming to take me away.

Our crew is ready to serve you.

The university clan.

Valedictorian
Gloria Bednarik

Together for the last time!

Salutatorian
June Sauricki

Let's get with the program, girls!

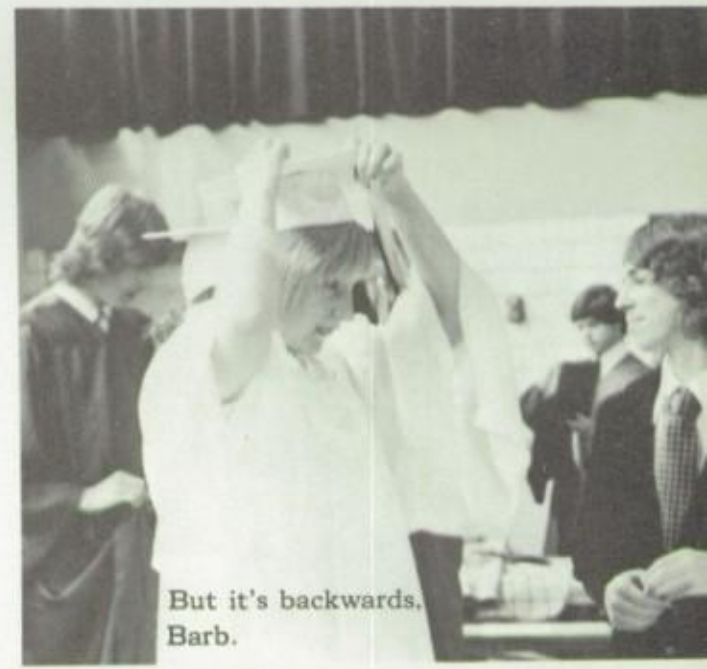

What can I say?

Take us to our leader.

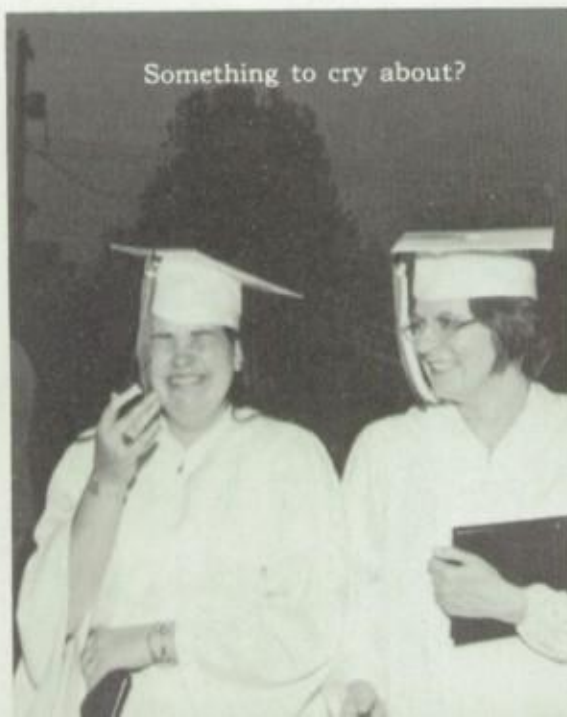

Thank you, Mr. Baker.

But it's backwards,
Barb.

A traditional farewell!

Something to cry about?

Now there's a happy face.

Oh, there's the camera!

Junior-Senior Prom

May 18, 1974

The Junior-Senior Prom featuring the theme "Moonlight and Roses" was held on Saturday evening, May 18, 1974, from 8:00 until midnight. The couples enjoyed a romantic evening dancing under the moonlight to the music of "The Revolvers".

After a delicious buffet dinner prepared by mothers of junior class members, Junior class president, Mike White, crowned the Prom royalty, Queen Sherry Rummell and Kevin Rouan.

The evening was completed with after-prom which was held at Camelot Lanes in Boardman.
